

Coming Sunday ...

Vital people

Vital people make the Magic Valley a good place to live.

More than the mountains, clean air, hunting and fishing, the Magic Valley's most important resource is its surprisingly diverse collection of people.

This Sunday, the Times-News Annual Progress Edition will take a look at the wide range of people who inhabit our valley.

Most do not make the headlines, although some have changed the world. Most are quiet, but have provocative things to say. Some are embroiled in public controversy, while others quietly involve themselves in intriguing pastimes and business.

Times-News readers Sunday will learn about a very strong policeman, predictions of a hamburger glut, a man who's decided to retire at 93, the philosophy of window washing, the most obnoxious man in Idaho, the general in an insect war and a rock 'n' roll freak gone classic.

We hope you enjoy Progress '77 Sunday.

Carter firm about rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says his commitment to human rights is unwavering and he will continue to speak out to keep the American people informed about what their government is doing.

At his fourth news conference since taking office, Carter said Thursday his human rights statements have the support of Congress and the people, that he is not speaking "with a hollow voice."

"I think it is good for us," Carter said, "even in very complex matters when the outcome of negotiations still is in doubt to let the members of Congress and the people of this country know what is going on, and some of the options that be pursued, some of the consequences of success, some of the consequences of failure."

He repeated his belief that statements on human rights would not impede Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's mission to the Soviet Union.

Speaking to reporters in the Old Executive Office Building, Carter also said:

— He will unveil within the next two weeks a comprehensive, "very strong" anti-inflation package but acknowledged the rate of inflation is likely to remain near 6 per cent.

— The United States has "no outstanding commitments" to providing aid for Zaire but this country has enjoyed "good relations" with the central African nation for years.

— His administration is giving a "quite high priority" to fighting organized crime. The White House said later in a clarifying statement the administration also is giving high priority to fighting white collar crime.

— He personally does not believe any of the 30 water projects ordered, for review on future spending should be built, but said he would reassess them under way.

— He doesn't "feel we ought to apologize or castigate ourselves, or assume a status of culpability..." with regard to the Vietnam War. "I'm willing," he said, "to face the future without reference to the past and that's what the Vietnamese leaders have proposed."

Much of the news conference dealt with Vance's trip to the Soviet Union starting tonight.

Carter said the trip will deal primarily with arms limitation and reduction "for a change," and the secretary of state will carry new U.S. positions for the second round of strategic arms limitation talks (SALT II). The President has said previously he hopes such controversial issues as the backfire bomber and the cruise missile can be delayed until later talks.

"He is going in good faith," Carter said of Vance. "The Soviets have been very cooperative up to this point. We are pleased with their attitudes."

Carter said his commitment to human rights is "unwavering," and after reading Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev's speeches "in their entirety," he remains unconvinced the U.S. stand on human rights constitutes internal interference in Soviet domestic matters.

"We're not singling out the Soviet Union for abuse" on this issue, Carter said. "We'll meet them halfway."

Ponderosa Inn sold at Burley

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Ponderosa Inn in North Burley was sold to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls in a sheriff's sale here today.

John Coleman, attorney for First Federal, made the lone bid of $1.2 million.

First Federal had obtained the forced sale through a mortgage foreclosure on two notes covering loans made to the Ponderosa Inn in 1971.

The outstanding loan totaled $880,318. The foreclosure judgment also included $111,332 in interest, $109,165 in attorney's fees, $2,207 in foreclosure costs and $143 in costs of the suit for a total foreclosure judgment of $1,221,003.

First federal announced Thursday that it has agreed to allow Banker's Union Life Insurance Co. of Denver, Colo., to purchase First Federal's certificate of sale "at a reduced amount" before April 15.

The agreement for the Colorado life insurance firm to purchase the motel-convention center facility was signed Thursday morning by First Federal and Floyd C. Anglin, president of Ponderosa Inns, Inc.

Anglin, who had blocked two earlier scheduled foreclosure sales on the property, agreed that he would not restrain today's sale. First Federal agreed to let Ponderosa Inns, Inc., continue to operate the Burley facility for the one-year period of redemption in which Ponderosa Inns, Inc., can reclaim the property by paying the amount of the bid.

Ponderosa Inns, Inc., agreed to pay $10,000 per month as rent, beginning April 1, 1977, and to be applied against the redemption amount.

Anglin was not in attendance at this morning's foreclosure sale. He indicated he would be in Denver for a meeting with officials of Banker's Union Life.

Anglin reportedly has been discussing a loan with Banker's Union Life and purchase of the certificate of sale by the Colorado firm is expected to be contingent upon a loan. Banker's Union would be required to pay the full amount of today's bid if it purchased the certificate after April 15.

Ponderosa Inns, Inc., previously had planned to appeal the foreclosure judgment issued by Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Bellwood to the Idaho Supreme Court. Judge Bellwood last week boosted the amount of the bond necessary for the appeal from $500,000 to $900,000.

In Thursday's pact, Ponderosa Inns, Inc., agreed to drop plans for appeal on the judgment.

Ponderosa Inns, Inc., under the certificate of sale, has one year in which to redeem the property by paying the amount of today's bid to the certificate holder.

Unions vie for plants

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — The Teamsters Union and the Grain Millers are playing tug of war over representation of employees at two J.R. Simplot potato processing plants in Idaho.

A close election Thursday at the Caldwell Simplot plant left the question of representation for that plant up in the air and another election is pending at the Heyburn plant in the near future.

The 561 votes gleaned by the American Federation of Grain Millers was not enough for the 51 per cent of the workers needed to retain its present status as the union representing the plant's nearly 1,400 employees, though the Teamsters fell slightly behind with only 543 votes. Enough votes were cast for other bargaining agents to block a majority vote.

The issue will again be brought to a vote in a run-off election within the next two weeks, according to Al Hill, secretary-treasurer of the Teamsters Local 19 in Pocatello.

In the interim, the Teamsters are petitioning the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) for a similar election to be held at the Heyburn plant for representation of the employees there. Hill said.

"We received a request from employees at the Heyburn plant asking the Teamsters Union to come in and represent them," Hill said. "The reason the employees want to change is that their feeling is the Teamsters can do a better job."

"At this point, we don't know when the election will be set," Hill added. "The National Labor Relations Board will set up an election date."

The Teamsters already represent employees at Lamb-Weston in American Falls, A and P Co. in Burley, Rogers Brothers Co. in Idaho Falls, American Palato Co. in Blackfoot and R.T. French Co., Shelley, according to Hill.

Hill said Teamsters contracts with the other processors in Idaho contain higher wages and more benefits.

"For example, our trimmers and sorters at Lamb-Weston get $3.75 per hour and at Simplot, they only get $3.53 per hour," Hill said.

He said employees working under Teamsters contracts have the advantage of more fringe benefits than those working under Grain Millers contracts.

"At Lamb-Weston, they get health and welfare benefits with dental, vision and prescription drug benefits all paid for by the company covering the employees and their dependents," Hill explained.

He said at Simplot, employees received only health and welfare benefits and no others and they must pay the premium for their dependents if they want them covered.

A spokesman for the American Federation of Grain Millers, however, disputed Hill's allegations.

Chiefs wary of homosexual cops

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chief of police and the Twin Falls County Sheriff said today they wouldn't hire a homosexual and would fire anyone in their department they later found to be a homosexual.

Meanwhile, other law enforcement officials here said they weren't sure how they would treat homosexuals who worked for them or who applied for work.

The officers' responses came today after recent Boise Police Department actions. The Boise dept. fired seven women after an investigation. Reportedly, two were fired because of their alleged participation in homosexual activity which lowered their job performance.

"We wouldn't tolerate it," Twin Falls City Police Chief Frank Barnett said about having homosexuals in his department. "The public would have no faith in them (the homosexuals) or any of the other officers."

"It would certainly damage the morale and pride in the rest of the department too," he added.

Barnett said he would fire any person in his department who he learned was a homosexual.

While officers and other personnel have never been asked what are their sexual preferences, Barnett said he was "sure" no one in his department was gay.

While saying he hadn't "given it much thought," Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder said he wouldn't hire a homosexual and would fire any person found to be one.

"I'd just as soon not be around one," the sheriff said. "It's certainly not natural."

"It's activities unbecoming to a police officer," Corder said. "I think a police officer should stand above anything that would be unbecoming or illegal. I think they should set an example on duty as well as off duty."

Other law enforcement officials were not sure how they would handle the situation if a homosexual were in their departments.

"I'm not sure whether I'd hire or fire one or not," Ellet Police Chief Randy Lammers said. "You'd have to look at his ability to do law enforcement. As long as he doesn't take it to work, it's pretty much what he does on his own at home."

While saying the four officers who work for him are not homosexuals, Lammers said "he wouldn't fire any of them if he found out they were gay because 'I think they're doing their job.'"

However, Lammers admitted, "community pressure might force" him to fire homosexuals and not to hire them.

Gooding Police Chief Dwayne Walker said he didn't know how he would respond if a homosexual were employed in his office.

"I don't know because I've never thought about it," he said.

Walker said he might "be inclined" to fire the person because "it would probably interfere with an officer's ability to do his job in a small community where everyone knows everything about everyone."

Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler said he didn't know what he would do if a homosexual applied for work at his department. "I would have to do a little checking into the situation. But if he could do the job without any problems, I might hire him."

Drexler said he would have to take community opinion into consideration if such a situation were to arise.

"Public opinion would carry quite a lot of weight in a situation like this," he said.

Most of the department heads said they didn't want to comment on the Boise problem because they didn't know enough about it.

Barnett said he thought the Boise police chief "was certainly taking the right action to correct the situation."

Barnett said he thought the press and "civil rights" groups were "blowing the problem out of proportions" just because the personnel involved in Boise were women.

In men were involved, the press wouldn't have handled it the same way, he said.

Boise Police Chief John Church Thursday reportedly fired two women dispatchers "for conduct unbecoming a police employee." The firing came two weeks after five others were fired. Two of those previously fired were reportedly accused of allowing their job performance "to decline" by "involvement" in homosexual activities.

Church said another woman employee will be fired today — the last dismissal to result from an internal investigation of his department.

Sign ordinance can help Twin

Not too many years ago, businessmen who erected flashy signs on their storefronts were hailed as forward-thinking, promotion-minded entrepreneurs.

A new, big sign was a banner of progress. As 110 Twin Falls businessmen now know, signs aren't what they used to be.

Enforcement of a five-year-old city ordinance regulating the size and location of business signs in the downtown area has made lawbreakers of merchants who once took pride in their storefront placards.

Understandably, some downtown businessmen and the owners of two commercial sign companies are blinking mad over the city council's decision to enforce the stringent sign ordinance.

Other businessmen, knowing the crackdown could have come at any time since 1972 when the statute originally was approved, long ago changed their outside displays.

The fuming businessmen, those caught with signs too large or wrongly displayed under the city ordinances, must recognize the futility of fighting city hall on this issue.

The constitutional right of a city to limit the size and location of signs is well established. And, many of the businesses now wailing over the sign ordinance have known for years they were in violation of the sign ordinance.

Yet even more compelling argument can be made for businessmen to conform to the sign ordinance.

This ordinance isn't designed to ruin the downtown business area, but to enhance it.

The restrictive ordinance helps preserve the atmosphere of the downtown mall. Thousands of dollars have been spent this decade sprucing up the mall. Trees have sprouted. Sidewalks have widened. Decorative lighting and new store fronts have been added.

These changes make downtown Twin Falls a comfortable, enjoyable place to shop.

But the mall would be even more appealing if a few, obnoxious signs were removed.

In the long run, the commercial viability of the mall hinges directly on a continuation of atmosphere which now pervades in the downtown commercial zone. Gigantic blinking, 1950ish signs don't do much for the overall appearance of the central city.

Many stores already have changed to smaller, less offensive signs. These smaller signs integrate well with the pleasant retail atmosphere which is essential to downtown Twin Falls.

Take the Bon Marche, for example. Its sign is an eye catcher, but legal under the new sign ordinance. So is the Leatherman's sign, and the Music Center sign.

City ordinances which preserve and promote the aesthetic appeal of downtown Twin Falls should be expanded, not reversed.

The sign ordinance simply makes the downtown area a more attractive place to shop which ultimately will help businessmen, not hurt them.

Soviets crack down on dissidents

By CHRISTOPHER S. WREN
& IRTV N.Y. Times Service

MOSCOW — Although the Carter administration has come under fire here for advocacy of human rights, the evidence is that the Soviet leadership was beginning a crackdown on dissidents even before Carter moved into the White House.

Soviet officials have encouraged the notion that Washington's outspokenness may jeopardize cooperation in arms control and there is a risk that Soviet-American relations, now at an uncertain stage, may deteriorate further. But the President's support of human rights seems to have complicated the Soviet leadership's internal situation as much as its relations with Washington.

Speaking in the Kremlin Monday, Leonid Brezhnev stressed what he saw as the internal necessities of dealing firmly with dissidents, branding them tools in a Western campaign to undermine the unity of the Soviet bloc.

Internally the rights issue has been thrust back into the limelight by the arrest several days ago of a Soviet citizen, a one of three Jews accused by the government newspaper Izvestia of working for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Because Izvestia's charges also implicate Americans, his arrest was seen by some as a challenge to President Carter, possibly calculated to judge him back toward the quieter diplomacy practiced by his predecessors. But other sources feel that the harassment of dissidents would have occurred anyway.

In advance of Carter's inauguration, the Soviet authorities began moving against domestic critics with searches, interrogations and other pressure. An apparent motivation was to prepare for the conference scheduled for Belgrade, Yugoslavia, in June to review progress made in fulfilling the East-West convention signed in 1975 in Helsinki, Finland.

The Soviet Union apparently underestimated the extent to which the agreement's provisions for freer movement of persons and ideas, included at Western insistence, would become a yardstick for its performance on human rights. A normally fragmented dissident movement began to coalesce around the issue of compliance with the Helsinki pact.

A dissident group headed by Yuri F. Orlov, a physicist, was formed to collect information on human rights abuses and forward it to the West. The group spawned others in the Ukraine and Lithuania. The emergence of even a haphazard opposition concerned the Kremlin because, as a Western diplomat commented, "organized dissident groups are viewed by this regime as a greater threat than individuals."

Meanwhile, ideologues began their build-up for the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution next November and found that dissenters were likely to challenge the basic theme of the celebration, namely that the Soviet people were content and prosperous.

"It is clear from articles in Pravda and in other signs that the leadership took a decision at the highest level to liquidate organized opposition in this anniversary year," a Russian familiar with party thinking said.

Other factors also favored a crackdown on dissidents. The Kremlin has been worried about the expression of dissent in Eastern Europe and wanted to forestall problems in the Soviet Union, particularly in view of some latent consumer discontent over food shortages this winter.

Hopes for arriving at an arms agreement and for a visit by Brezhnev to the United States are also thought to have influenced a decision to muffle domestic critics, far enough in advance to put a better gloss on all these events.

Though Moscow had braced for Western complaints, it did not expect the new President to become a catalyst for dissident resistance. "This campaign happened to coincide with Carter's comments on human rights," said the Soviet source. "If Nixon had been in power, he would have remained silent."

At the turn of the year, security police raided the apartments of dissidents and reported finding foreign currency and other contraband. Dr. Orlov, the leader of the Moscow monitoring group, was picked up and questioned for seven hours. Other dissidents were interrogated in an evident attempt to link them with an explosion on the Moscow subway in early January.

In the face of protests from Washington, four members of the monitoring groups, Dr. Orlov and Alexander I. Ginzburg in Moscow; and Mikola Fiodenko and Oleska Tilbay in the Ukraine, were arrested in early February. Another member, Lyudmila Alekseyeva, was given permission to follow two earlier members into exile abroad.

Other dissidents in Moscow, Kiev and Vilna were searched or interrogated. But Moscow also sought to mollify criticism by transferring an ailing dissident, Sergei Kovalev, from a labor camp to a prison hospital and by releasing another, Vladimir Borisov, from a mental asylum. Before the KGB seized Shcharansky, another Helsinki group member, the Government first released a jailed Jewish physician, Mikhail Shtern.

Pravda implied that the drive against dissidents would continue despite Washington's complaints. "The freedom of the individual is the sacred and inalienable right of all honest citizens and workers, but not of those who expect a free rein for activity against the people," the party newspaper said.

While the Kremlin dismissed the Carter administration's early concern as interference in Soviet internal affairs, it became furious when the President sent a letter to Andrei D. Sakharov, the physicist and leading human rights advocate, and later met with Vladimir K. Bukovsky, the deported dissident. Both actions were restrained, but the nuances, along with Carter's assurance that he was not singling out the Soviet Union, seemed lost on the Russians.

The response was a counterattack in the press assailing the United States for its own alleged human rights violations, to show, as one Soviet insider said, that "every stick has two ends."

While Moscow's response to Carter showed evident pride, it was also calibrated to avoid going too far.

A different kind of KKK leader

By WALTER MORRISON
Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — Those who have a motion-picture picture of a Klansman haven't run into David Duke.

The 25-year-old national director of the Louisiana-based Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is no overbearing, white coat wearing, epithet spouting example of a bigot.

He is an educated man who speaks in even tones, and says his discussion of the shortcomings of blacks and their inability to "adjust" to American society with an acknowledgment that oppression may have had something to do with their limitations.

He quotes Woodrow Wilson to prove that the original Klan "saved" the South from black legislators who sat barefoot in legislative chambers, eating chicken and throwing their bare feet on their desks.

"I'm not apologizing for what the Ku Klux Klan did," Duke said in an interview.

"I recognize there were excesses," he added, referring to the activities of "night riders."

An interview, Duke turned most of his fire on Jews, calling them "the most racist people on the face of the Earth," and accusing them of having been heavily involved in the slave trade.

Duke displayed an ability to turn catch phrases popular with integrationists and black power advocates to the use of his own philosophy.

Again and again he offered "community control" as a solution to the race problem. Blacks should control their communities, he said, and whites should control theirs.

Duke said he favored "black-majority rule" for Rhodesia and South Africa, and attacked as "hypocrites" those blacks who oppose "white majority rule" for the United States.

"We're the majority, we've got a right to run our country accordingly," he said at one point.

Duke said he saw nothing wrong in segregation laws. If the white majority wants such laws "to protect their race and the sanctity of their race."

The ultimate "long-term solution" to the race problem is separation of the races, Duke said. He said such separation is the only way to prevent the suppression of blacks, he said.

Asked if he favored blacks voting for President, Duke replied, "in the long term solution, no."

He said he had not made a final judgment on whether racial separation should take the form of repatriation of blacks to Africa or their "geographic separation" on this continent.

Duke said he was "concerned about whites being outnumbered 98 to 1" in the world's population, and noted that non-whites have a higher birth rate than whites.

But, of course, not "when asked if he favored sterilization of non-whites 'or a more extreme solution' to reduce their birth rate."

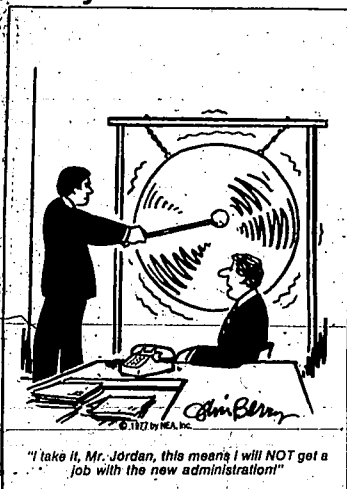

Duke said white people are "bombaraded" by television ads and articles "bewailing" overpopulation and are being encouraged to be sterilized or to practice birth control.

Duke praised the contribution of various white immigrant groups in contrast to the posture of some other Klan organizations in the past, which took a "nativist" posture.

His Klan group is not associated with other Klan organizations, Duke said. He said his group is composed of a lot of "average white people," who support it with small monthly contributions. He said his income from Klan activities is "less than $6,000 a year."

Duke declared he did not condone slavery or any of its aspects.

Berry's World

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — "All we've heard about these last six months is Barbara Walters and her million dollar contract," says Louise Kapp Howe, author of "Pink Collar Workers," published by Putnam.

"We don't hear that the earning gap between working men and women is higher than ever," she says. In 1956, the average earnings of fulltime working women were 63 per cent of men's; in 1974, they had shrunk to 57 per cent.

We don't hear, she adds, that "women in the labor force are as segregated today as they were at the turn of the century."

In 1900, most working women had agricultural, manufacturing or domestic jobs; today, most are in clerical, service or sales positions.

Women comprise 40 per cent of the country's workers, but only 15 per cent of them are "professionals," mostly teachers and nurses, traditionally female categories.

The rest are "pink collar workers," Mrs. Howe's term for the underpaid, undervalued yet socially useful beauticians, sales workers, waitresses, office personnel and homemakers whose stories she relates in her book.

It took her three years and conversations with perhaps two hundred women around the country to write the book. She took the time, she says, "because it was becoming more and more clear that the strategy defined by the women's movement was not affecting the majority of working women in this country."

Certainly it helped the occasional lady banker or lawyer, but in the main, "the movement overlooked these other women."

"When it all began," she says, "women were saying we don't want to do what women have been doing all these years. But they didn't all necessarily mean that pink collar world had no value." It just seemed that way.

And even if they didn't say that, society has always undervalued women unless they perform a man's job.

Strangely enough, if you put a man in a "pink collar" job, that in itself upgrades the position. Mr. Seymour could your hair, and he's fawned on, respected and paid very well.

The typical female beautician who performs the same functions, however, earns less, has no job security, no adequate union protection, and is subject to the bad temperament and hiring and firing whims of the man who owns the shop. She's not Ms. or Miss Anybody.

Then there are waitresses and waiters.

He gets the better paying jobs in fine restaurants, hotels and private clubs, enabling him to assume a well-paid air of superiority.

She works in coffee shops, cocktail lounges (where she's often marked as fair game by some male customers), in the less expensive eateries, again without fringe benefits, job security, perhaps even a locker to change her clothes.

In the largest occupational group in the country, office clerical workers where 97 per cent of the typists are women and 99 per cent of the secretaries are women, there are other ills.

Say you work for a large insurance company while giving you a pension, health insurance, free lunches and tuition, you live in a nice house, you have a car, you have a nice life. You're giving your poor wage (after all, look at the benefits). It's definitely counting on you to leave, not too long after arriving, to marry or have a child. Then it can hire another high school graduate at base pay to take your place.

Worse, these days, if I hire an overqualified college graduate who can't find work elsewhere,

"Credential requirements are being upped year after year for the same job and it's absurd," Mrs. Howe says. "College grads are going into yesterday's non-college jobs and the chances non-college women had before, which weren't that great, will be less and less."

Since seven out of eight working women don't have college degrees, that means everyone gets hurt.

Mrs. Howe doesn't know what the answers are: how, for instance, sales women selling "soft goods" can work their way into the big commission jobs in furniture and major appliance, which they usually don't want anyway because they fear the reaction of the men already working there; how to fight a department store's policy stating managers must be college grads which means promoting from outside the company, not within; how, finally, to deal with the inertia clouding the "pink collar" world that prevents women from fighting for fair union representation, among other things — often because after caring for small children and the house all day, and working part-time on a night job, they're just too tired.

Picketing bill opposed

Editor, Times-News:
Everyone should be alerted! Organized labor has kicked off its 1977 legislative program with a decision to go out first on the issue of common situs picketing legislation. HR 3500 has been introduced in the House of Representative Frank Thompson, (D-N.J.) and a number of others.
The issue involved is legalization of secondary boycotts in the construction industry by amending the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA).
In the construction industry, the normal operation is for a general contractor to enter into a contractual arrangement with an owner for the building of a project and then contract specialized portions of the work. Each of the contractors is a separate legal entity. The subcontractors are known as secondary employers.
Under current labor law, rulings of the National Labor Relations Board that are upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court: the employee of a primary employer has the right to picket and strike their employer, and the employees of a subcontractor or secondary employer have the right to strike and picket their employer, but it is illegal for employees of an individual subcontractor to put up picket lines around the overall project and stop all employees from working.

Such picketing constitutes a secondary boycott, which is illegal under the NLRA.
Organized labor seeks to legalize such secondary boycotts in the construction industry. Since 1951, six congresses have considered and rejected such legislation. Last year, both houses of the Congress passed common situs legislation, backed by then Secretary of Labor, Dangle. But when a nationwide storm erupted and letters started piling into the White House, President Ford vetoed the bill.
The unions have made it clear that their real goal with HR 3500 is to force unionization of a large portion of the construction industry. It is estimated that only about 10 percent of construction workers in the country are now members of unions, and the unions have been losing out steadily to open shop construction firms.
The net result of the legislation would make it nearly impossible for a general contractor to employ the services of any non-union subcontractor, since any union involved at the site could find an excuse for a labor dispute and picket the entire construction site.
Farm Bureau and other opponents argue that its passage would result in a greater imbalance in labor-management relations on the side of labor in the construction industry, that coercion of all-union projects would result in escalation of building costs, would tend to put many small construction firms out of business and would increase organized labor's monopoly power.

I think that the above Farm Bureau explanation of this bill is very clear. The passage of HR 3500 would primarily mean that all citizens would be asked for more tax dollars to support federal and state funded projects. Please, immediately write to our legislators, especially Senator Church, and let them know you do not support HR 3500. Also ask President Carter to veto the bill should it pass both houses, which it looks like it will unless we get enough opposition voiced.
Send your letters to: The Honorable James E. Carter, President of the U.S., The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C. 20500. Sen. 'Political powers con man's target

By United Press International
In the twelfth, copyrighted article on crime in Arizona, Investigative Reporters and Editors Inc. said ex-convict Ned Warren Sr. was the mastermind of a multi-million-dollar land fraud industry in Arizona. The IRE said Warren accomplished this by:
1) Involving politicians, Democrats and Republicans alike, in advantageous land deals—thereby gaining access to politically powerful people who controlled the party machinery which, in turn, meant control of state government.
2) Giving "systematic" payoffs, "loans" and other favors to a few key public officials responsible for policing Arizona's real estate laws.
IRE said Warren was connected to Nathan Voloshin, the influence peddler who gained notoriety in the 1960's for operating out of the office of the Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.
Voloshin was listed as a reference when Warren applied for an Arizona real estate salesman's license in 1961, an application rejected because Warren was on federal probation at the time.
According to the IRE, the Voloshin connection is traceable to the post-World War II years in New York City when Warren was an ambitious confidence man selling phony radio advertising and bilking investors in a nonexistent Broadway musical comedy called "The Happiest Days."

The IRE said Warren demonstrated a keen talent for acquiring politicians as business associates and included candidates for governor, two former Democratic national committeemen, big party contributors, and key officials of the state GOP.
The IRE said that in 1971 Warren obtained a letter of endorsement on official Senate stationery from Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater for an overseas firm selling Arizona land to servicemen in the Orient. The land being sold was owned by Jack Ross, a prominent Democrat and gubernatorial aspirant. Warren's firm, Consolidated Acceptance Corp., was breaking the deal.
Precisely how the letter was obtained from Goldwater who claims he doesn't even know Warren—is in dispute.
Warren claims that Ross, brother of Goldwater's former son-in-law, asked Goldwater for the letter at the urging of Warren's firm. Ross denies it. Goldwater—has admitted writing the letter, but couldn't remember whether the request came from Democrat Ross or Republican boss Harry Rosenzweig.
The IRE is an organization of 300 investigative journalists who sponsored 37 reporters and editors from 25 news organizations in a six-month probe of crime in Arizona. The investigation was undertaken following the bombing murder last June of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles.

Grazing district aid OK sought

BOISE (UPI)—Secretary of State Pete Cennarus said Thursday $150,000 in idle funds are available in Idaho counties to grazing districts to help alleviate drought problems, but there is a catch—authorization to spend it.
Cennarus said he planned to confer with the attorney general to see if there wasn't some way this money could be used by the grazing districts faced with severe drought conditions.

"We need to get something going to assist these areas in this drought emergency," he said. "These funds are needed right now, not next month. This money will provide for water for livestock."
Cennarus explained that in many areas there were no ponds or lakes to provide watering for livestock. He said the estimated $150,000 could be used to provide pumps and backup systems to provide water for livestock.

The secretary of state said that the money sitting around was funds that were provided for range improvement, but because Congress eliminated advisory boards at the end of 1975 the counties were in a quandary how to spend it.
"This money was returned to the counties and is sitting idle because of a leak of advisory boards in grazing districts to spend it," Cennarus said.

Legislation "the boards have been eliminated and, therefore, the county treasurer has nobody to turn the money over to."
He said the attorney general's office was studying how the counties could legally turn the money loose to the grazing districts for drought relief.

Chavez plans march

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Jackie Coogan, the former child star, says it was "a horrible mistake" that led to his arrest on charges of stealing $1.12 worth of wood screws from a hardware store.

While buying screws for a project at his home, he said, he selected some and then decided he needed a larger size. "I just absent-mindedly dropped the first batch of screws in my pocket" and forgot about them when he left the store, he said.

LONDON (UPI) — British actor Peter Sellers Thursday was discharged from Charing Cross hospital following treatment for apparent food poisoning.

Sellers, 51, collapsed on a plane Sunday while flying back from Nice, France, with his 22-year-old actress wife, Lynne Frederick.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian Freddie Prinze, who committed suicide in January, left three quarters of his sizable estate to his mother and the remainder to his 1-year-old son.

Prinze's will, filed for probate in Superior Court Thursday, left nothing to his father, Karl Preutzel, or his estranged wife, Cathy, 26.

KEENE, Calif. (UPI) — United Farm Workers Union President Cesar Chavez has announced plans for a mass march and rally Sunday to kick off a recruiting drive in the Coachella Valley.

Chavez said Thursday he will lead a march from the town of Mesquite to Coachella — a distance of 12 miles — and then conduct a rally.

'Deprogram' plan okayed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five families who won a landmark court struggle against their children's religious preference have 30 days to "deprogram" and woo the youngsters away from the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Superior Court Judge S. Lee Vavuris termed the case "unprecedented" in American legal history and granted the parents' petition Thursday for temporary custody of the young adults ranging in age from 21 to 26.

Vavuris said he welcomed an appeal in the case to clarify constitutional issues of free religion and speech. Ralph Baker, an attorney for the children, said he would appeal what he called "modern-day religious persecution."

The judge said no loving parent would allow harm to come to a child and rejected a request by the children's attorneys to ban deprogramming. "I'm not making any restraints on that," Vavuris said. But he ruled the parents "must be present at all times" during deprogramming, which Moon's followers call forcible brainwashing.

The parents had charged brainwashing techniques were used by the Korean evangelist's followers, but said they would give up the struggle to win the children back if their beliefs were not shaken in 30 days.

Responding to a plea from a lawyer for the children, Paul Goorjian, who said "Please don't turn them over to the voluble" Vavuris said: "We are talking about the essence of civilization — mother, father and children. There's nothing like it. I know of no greater love than parents for their children and I am sure the parents would not submit their children to harm."

"A child is a child, even though a parent may be 90 and the child 60."

One youngster, John Howard, 23, of Danville, Calif., said of the ruling, "It's very scary. It reminds me of Russia or China — the mental institutions."

Vavuris said the children would be allowed access to church materials and to their attorneys during the custody period. But Baker, arguing against custody, said the only issue was whether the children were mentally competent. "I just can't believe we're trying this case in the United States of America," he said. "The Constitution gives these people the right to make the wrong decisions."

The other Moonies, all of whom sat with their parents during the two-week hearing, are Barbara Underwood, Portland, Ore.; Janice Kaplan, Toledo, Ohio; Leslie Brown, Berkeley Heights, N.J.; and Jacqueline Katz, Weicott, N.Y.

Soviet chief sees Indian Ocean 'zone of peace'

By United Press International
Soviet President Nikita Khrushchev, following Fidel Castro in a Communist diplomatic tour across Africa, has promised to work with the United States and other countries toward turning the Indian Ocean into a "zone of peace."

In Angola, Castro told a cheering crowd there are no limits to Cuban aid for the Marxist regime he helped bring to power.

Podgorny, speaking at a dinner in his honor in Zanzibar, Tanzania, said "the Soviet Union is prepared to consider on an equal basis together with other states concerned the question of declaring the Indian Ocean a 'zone of peace.'"

He said Soviet interest in the region is high because "the Indian Ocean is crossed by the routes which connect the European part of the USSR with the Soviet Far East."

Soviet fleets regularly patrol the ocean and the United States, France and Britain send warships to the region. The United States is establishing a naval base on the island of Diego Garcia and claims the Soviet Union has established bases in Somalia, Tanzania and several other nations on the east African coast want foreign warships out of the area.

"We hope that the Russians and the other super powers will follow this up," a Tanzanian official said.

(At a Washington news conference Thursday, President Carter said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance would take up the issue of demilitarizing the Indian Ocean in coming arms talks with the Soviet Union.)

Podgorny held a three-hour talk Thursday with President Julius Nyerere and the two were to meet again today to discuss the guerrilla war against Rhodesia's white minority regime.

Diplomatic observers said the tour was designed to bolster Soviet influence in the region following recent U.S. and British diplomatic initiatives. His visit appeared designed to follow closely Castro's itinerary.

In Angola, Castro defended Cuba's intervention in last year's Angolan civil war and pledged "unlimited support" for the regime set up by the victorious Marxists.

"There are no limits to our collaboration with Angola," he told a cheering crowd in Luanda on the second day of his visit to the former Portuguese colony, the Angolan news agency ANGOP said. "We consider Cuba's help to Angola an internationalist duty."

Ponders

UNITED NATIONS—Amb. Andrew Young, serving as president of the UN Security Council during March, ponders debate on South Africa Thursday. He reportedly gave black African UN members a draft "declaration of principles" that may eventually develop into an ultimatum to South Africa. (UPI)

30 killed in strong Turkey earthquake

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)—A strong earthquake shook eastern Turkey early today, and government officials said it killed at least 30 persons. Initial reports said the jolt caused widespread destruction and took lives in Palu, a farming town some 375 miles east of Ankara.

Communications with surrounding villages were lost and Turkish officials said troops were being rushed to the stricken area to aid in rescue work.

Rescue officials said 30 bodies had been found buried under rubble.

Palu is situated close to Turkey's largest hydroelectric complex and Keban Dam. The city appeared to have taken the brunt of the shock, officials said, but there was no immediate word whether the dam had been damaged.

The Independent Turkish News Agency said two schools, a mosque and many homes in Palu had been damaged by the quake, which struck at 2:55 a.m. (7:55 p.m. EST Thursday).

The intensity of the jolt was not announced here. But a spokesman at the National Earthquake Information Center at Golden, Colo., said it probably was less than 6.5 on the Richter scale because it had not triggered alarms sensitive to shocks greater than that.

The tremor came four months after a killer quake north of Lake Van left more than 3,000 persons dead and brought the total number of quake victims in Turkey in the last 20 years to more than 100,000.

Officials said troops were rushed from Elazig to aid in rescue work in Palu, situated some 40 miles east of the province capital. Elazig has a population of 107,000 and is the administrative center of the copper-rich Elazig province.

Soldiers also were making their way to villages around Palu. The officials said communications had been lost with several villages.

The quake hit an area some 220 miles west of Lake Van, about 60 miles north of the town of Diyarbakir.

Last Tuesday a quake in southeastern Iran killed at least 130 persons and early this month a quake in Romania devastated the capital of Bucharest and killed at least 1,500.

Congolese ex-chief executed

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo (UPI)—A firing squad executed former Congolese President Alphonse Massamba-Debat at dawn today for his alleged role in the assassination a week ago of President Marien Ngouabi, the military government announced.

Massamba-Debat, whom Ngouabi had overthrown in 1968, had been convicted and sentenced Thursday night by a military court.

A government spokesman said the court also has sentenced to death in absentia former army Capt. Bartholomew Kikadi, one of the four alleged gunmen who killed Ngouabi last Friday.

"The court is still sitting. There are numerous other persons belonging to the conspiracy who have been arrested and will face the tribunal," the spokesman said.

The exact number of the alleged suspects was not given.

Woman priesthood pushed by priests

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) —

The national convention of representatives of Roman Catholic priests Wednesday urged that women be allowed to become priests and deacons and called for the elimination of sexist language in official prayers of the Roman Catholic Church.

The National Federation of Priests' Councils, representing 113 local councils, overwhelmingly voted to urge a review by Pope Paul VI of a recent Vatican declaration against allowing admission of women to the priesthood. The organization's House of Delegates asked that the Vatican remove "canonical impediments" to priestly ordination based on sex.

"It signifies this House doesn't want these issues dropped," said The Rev. James Ruffin of Joliet, Ill., president of the National Federation of Priests' Councils.

"This indicates the delegates are not happy with the present position of Rome and want changes pursued," he said.

Earlier, the approximately 200 delegates defeated a proposal that they go on record as rejecting the Vatican document ruling out women priests. The Rev. Joseph Buckley of New Orleans said any resolution so strongly worded would be "insulting to the Holy Father" and added,

"If we want to have an influence on Rome, we should not insult them."

Members of the House of Delegates also overwhelmingly passed an action proposal calling on the church hierarchy to open the order of deacon to "all baptized persons" regardless of sex.

The delegates also urged local priests' councils to "rid their dioceses of all forms of sexism, wherever it exists, in attitudes, textbooks, stereotypical roles and wages and hiring practices."

"In our attempts to discuss and understand the place of women in ministry, there can never be an acknowledgment of their full role until we first address the sexism which permeates many areas of the Church," the resolution said.

The priests eliminated a proposal supporting phasing out of "sexist terms" in church language and hymns after several delegates objected that many hymns, poems and major church documents would be affected.

"We'll get ourselves where we can't even quote scripture if we pass this," said The Rev. Arthur Bendiken of Orlando, Fla.

One priest asked during the debate if it would be sexist to call a nun "sister."

The four-day convention ends today with final action on remaining resolutions.

Passion play planned

ROGER Reddick, with scroll, is narrator and Ryan Forter plays Christ in the First Christian Church's passion play, "Tragedy and Triumph," to be presented Palm Sunday at the church in Twin Falls. Twenty-five junior and senior high school Sunday school youths will present the play under the direction of Laraine Patton. The performance is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 3. No admission will be charged but a freewill offering will be taken. Proceeds from the play will be turned over to the church's new building fund.

Missionaries to India participate in service

TWIN FALLS — Rev. and Mrs. Tracy Gipson of Secunderabad, India, will participate in the 11 o'clock service at Twin Falls First Baptist Church Sunday morning.

Rev. Gipson, who is serving as registrar of Andhra Christian Theological College in Secunderabad, is a graduate of Twin Falls High School and Linfield College, McMinnville, Ore. He served as pastor of the church prior to being commissioned by the local church in 1947 as a missionary to India where he worked for ten years. He served as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Salem, Ore., for five years prior to accepting his present position.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Gipson will be sharing their experiences with the various church school classes at 9:45 a.m. Mrs. Gipson will present the children's story and Gipson will bring the sermon at the morning worship service. Special music during the service will be under the direction of Mrs. Willis Rider. The Gipsons will also be featured on the program at the American Baptist Central Association missionary rally which will convene at 3 p.m. Sunday at Filer First Baptist Church.

The Hooge Family

The Bible Baptist Church, 315 Shop Ave. W., Twin Falls, is holding the scheduled Missions Conference through Sunday. Services are at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Speaking is Rev. Delbert Hooge, veteran missionary of eight years to the Philippines. Saturday morning at 7 there will be a men's breakfast at the church with the missionary. At 11:30 a.m. there will be a no-host ladies luncheon at George K's with Mrs. Hooge speaking. On Sunday morning, Mrs. Hooge will be teaching all the children's classes together in both Sunday school and the following children's church. Rev. Hooge will be teaching the adult class at 10 a.m., and will preach in the regular worship service at 11 a.m.

Minister does 'Christian thing'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A minister told police Monday he had decided it would be un-Christian to file charges against two men who allegedly abducted him at gunpoint, robbed him and threatened to kill him.

"The case could have been prosecuted, there's no question about it," Jackson County Prosecuting Attorney William L. Goodwin said. "It's been some time since I've seen a victim of crime so concerned with the prosecution of the suspects. I could tell he was very troubled. He kept talking about the Christian thing to do."

Goodwin said the two men, both Jackson County residents in their 20s, were released after property taken from the minister was returned.

O'Keefe told authorities he stopped to help a young man standing by a parked car on Interstate 70 Sunday. O'Keefe said the man brandished a gun and forced him to drive to a home in the Blue Springs area.

Another man was waiting at the house, and the two threatened the minister with a knife and a gun. He gave them $50 in cash and $200 in traveler's checks that he endorsed after they threatened to kill him.

Church. "As a Christian minister, I do not seek revenge, but forgive them in accordance with the Christian teaching of returning good for evil."

New program at TF schools

Twin Falls High School French teacher Julie Simis started a special program last February to help put the study of a foreign language to a practical use.

On Tuesday mornings seven students from the high school teach French vocabulary at Sawtooth and Morningside Elementary Schools. About 27 elementary school students are involved in the program.

"The main reason I started this is to give the girls in French more confidence using the language," said Simis. "The program gives the high school students an opportunity to use the language in a practical way."

"The grade school students seem very excited about the program," said Dorothy Decorde, one of the girls teaching in the program. They take the program seriously and learn very quickly, she said.

Simis said the grade school students are not too young to learn a foreign language. "This is the best possible time for these kids to learn French," Simis said.

Shown at right are students from Sawtooth Elementary School and tutors seated at the back of the table, Claudia Van Dign, left, and Judy Montgomery, right.

Other high-school-girls involved in the program are Barbara Merkle, Tammi Selin, Heidi Price, Marly Sanchez and Dorothy Decorde.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune. All Rights Reserved.

DEAR ABBY: I am a mature 17-year-old girl. Last week I planned to go to a movie with another girl, my best friend. She called at the last minute to say that a guy she knew had come into town unexpectedly and asked her to go out with him, so our date was off. (She said she knew I'd understand.)

I felt very hurt and let down. My mother said I was wrong to feel that way because it was only natural for a girl to prefer to go out with a guy than with another girl. If a guy suddenly came into the picture, do you agree?

Abby, I don't think I would have broken my date with my best friend if a guy called me at the last minute. I would like your opinion.

SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR SECOND: I don't think it makes any difference whether the friend who suddenly backed out at this time was a guy or another girl. Breaking a date at the last minute as your "best friend" did was unfriendly.

Girlfriend breaks date

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday a salesman came to my door and showed me a product, and before I knew it, I had signed a contract to buy it. I have two years to pay, but now I'm afraid to tell my husband about the monthly installments.

I don't know what got into me, Abby. I really don't need that product, and we certainly can't afford it at this time. (I don't work and have no money of my own.)

Is there any way I can get out of it now?

FEELING SICK

DEAR SICK: Call (or write) to the company and explain that you signed the contract before you had time to think it over carefully. Tell them that you neither need nor want the product, and you cannot afford it.

Some companies will release hasty signers from their contracts. Others will not. (A note to other wives who are financially dependent on their husbands: Discuss all purchases with your husbands first, and don't sign anything in haste.)

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the business executive (or professional person) who has pictures of the spouse and family prominently displayed on his desk. No one else is interested, and if he or she has forgotten what his family looks like, he should take a better look at them when he gets home.

I never know what to say when I am "introduced" to a gallery of pictures. I keep fighting the urge to say, "Who cares?"

NAMELESS IN CHICAGO

DEAR NAMELESS: It doesn't take very long to say, "How lovely!" And there's an outside chance that some people DO care.

The reasons for the gallery display are varied. Some are because the executive himself (or herself) likes to look at them. Others are there because the spouse has put them there. Some want to crown a little. And some are there for "protection." (I am told that some people need a subtle reminder that the doctor, dentist or lawyer is a family member.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 67700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Will tea time replace coffee break?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tea is taking the edge off the American coffee habit.

Record high Java prices and the coffee boycott may have spurred tea drinking, but the trend has been long term, with tea sales up 112 per cent in the past 25 years.

A major research house said retail tea sales were up 21 per cent for the first two months of 1977, while ground coffee sales showed a gain of 2 per cent. Sales of instant coffee, which offers savings of roughly 45 per cent over ground coffee, rose 13 per cent during the two-month period.

When coffee neared $3 a pound in late December, Americans were urged to boycott coffee and switch to alternative beverages to drive down prices.

In 1976, the shelf price of a 48-bag box of tea climbed 4.5 cents to $3.5 cents, according to U.S. Bureau of Labor statistics. Ground coffee prices soared 57.9 per cent to about $3 a pound over the same 12-month period and are expected to hit at least $4.21 a pound by early June.

"It's a major mistake to think Americans will swing from an additive like coffee to tea just because of price," said a spokesman for Brooke Bond Foods, Inc., the Lake Success, N.Y., wholesaler of Red Rose tea, the No. 3 brand. "Any benefit tea has derived from the coffee boycott is purely accidental."

"We need a crystal ball to determine whether people are actually changing from coffee to tea," said John Anderson, president of the Tea Council of the USA. "Coffee sales appear to be as strong as ever, reflecting hoarding to a certain extent."

While tea drinking has gained momentum in the past 25 years, coffee consumption has ebbed since Java hit the $1-a-pound mark in the early Fifties and restaurants started selling a watered-down brew by squeezing 60 cups to a pound instead of the traditional 40. The younger generation has virtually rejected coffee in favor of soft drinks.

Higher tea prices appear inevitable in the months ahead now that the once stable commodity has hit a record $4.25 per kilo (2.2 pounds) in frantic bidding at the London tea auction.

Market sources in London said coffee drinkers in India, the Middle East, Britain, Canada and the United States have switched to tea, creating the upsurge in demand.

Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., Englewood Cliffs, N.J., the nation's largest tea company, has announced two wholesale price hikes totaling slightly more than 14 per cent so far this year. Nestle Co., White Plains, N.Y., the No. 2 wholesaler which processes only soluble teas, and Brooke Bond have held the line on pricing.

Edward McMenamy, executive vice president of marketing for Lipton, attributed the hikes to a "substantial increase in auction prices" averaging 126 per cent since the first of the year. He also said the company's normal year-to-year gain in tea sales doubled in 1976.

A spokesman for Nestle, which wholesales both coffee and tea, said: "People are buying up everything they can find in coffee, but tea is more of an encroachment now on coffee because of the price comparison factor." He pointed out a home-brewed cup of tea costs about 2 cents a cup, while ground coffee ranges in price from 4 to 7 cents a serving.

Salim Sayage of Bell, Bates Co., a New York importer of coffee and tea, said prices on bulk tea have jumped between 15 and 20 per cent since Jan. 1. "Speculation that consumers will switch to tea from coffee has driven up the auction price," he said.

Sayage's own experience may support such speculation. He cited a "tremendous swing to tea" among his customers. "Since coffee went through the ceiling, I have lost half of my coffee trade and gained half of the tea trade."

Vulgar language sweeps US schools

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — A teacher in a suburban high school recently had a spat with a boy student in front of the class. She tried to hand him back a test paper with a failing grade.

"The hell with it," he said.

"Well, what do you want me to do with it?" the teacher asked in foolish innocence.

He told her in cold, blunt, anatomical words where to put the paper.

In the corridor of another high school, a pretty girl hollered at a friend 10 yards away (in earshot of other students and teachers):

"Hey, you (piece of anatomy), come over here."

Dirty words. They're resounding as never before in high schools. Out of the mouths of children are coming expressions formerly reserved for factory workers, infantrymen and the like.

The dirty words no longer are used only in whispers or private conversations in private places. They're spilling out in classrooms, corridors and even principals' and deans' offices.

While this new approach to openness in language can also be found among some grown-ups, it is much more prevalent among high schoolers, according to a long list of teachers, school administrators, parents and children interviewed.

Nobody doubted that there has been a dirty word revolution and most said it has occurred sometime since the persons who are now high school seniors were freshmen.

A man who retired recently from his job as teacher at open high school said:

"In the last two or three years, the barriers have fallen (among high school students). There are no words you can't hear every day in the schools."

What's the significance of this open use of dirty words? What harm, if any, are the dirty words doing? Are they interrupting with the educational processes?

Talking to all these people shows that:

— Some school people think the use of foul language indicates a lowering of moral standards.

— Others think it has no meaning when it comes to morals.

— There is a widespread belief that today's high schoolers picked up the use of dirty words from older brothers and sisters, those people who were the noisy demonstrators of the late 1960s and who used foul language to attract attention so that their messages would be heard.

— In many cases, young people spouting filth are doing themselves a disservice to this extent: Some of their teachers and others in the schools cannot cope with dirty words and, thus, there is a breakdown in communications — where communications are needed desperately.

Are dirty words immoral? The question was put to a Protestant minister and to a priest.

The minister: "I think this has to do with immorality. When you talk rough, you grow rough. The verbiage that 'youth has taken on today is a deliberate abandonment of restraint.'"

The priest: He cited a study that showed that foul language falls into three categories — sexual functions, elimination functions and words with religious meaning — and added: "There are no moral implications in words that have to do with elimination. The use of sexual words is just a sign of immaturity. As for religious words, well, I'm afraid there's not enough faith around to give religious words any ring of sincerity."

A Chicago high school principal (like most, he asked not to be identified) said he wouldn't consider the dirty words as immoral and added: "I really don't think the kids know it's bad to use dirty words. Boys and girls, they're just not aware of anything bad about it."

"One young man was sitting in my office and blurted out, 'That blanking teacher is crazy.' I told him to watch his language and he looked at me like he didn't know what I was talking about — and I don't think he did know what I was talking about," he said.

But he agreed that the dirty word revolution is on and that vulgar language is ringing through the corridors of this school as never before.

LUNCH in a tree? Why not? These Webster-Grove-High-School youngsters, St. Louis, gave it a try in a fine old oak tree near their school as part of an outdoors adventure problem. Lunch-in-a-tree tastes great, they reported, and the view is a darn sight better than from an ordinary table. (UPI)

Couple recites promises

GLENNIS FERRY — Jana Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Payne, Boise, became the bride of Charles Milo Repelato, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Esquiza, Glens Ferry.

The 3 o'clock double-ring ceremony was performed at Christ's Chapel at the Boise State University by Rev. J.R. Jones on Feb. 10.

The bride, given by her father, chose a floor-length egg shell gown with long sleeves and a round neck with ruffled lace trim. Her fingertip veil of illusion net was also lace trimmed. Her bridal bouquet was of white chrysanthemums.

Baskets of yellow chrysanthemums decorated the chapel.

Charles "Chuckie" Repelato, son of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer. Lewis Esquiza, Twin Falls, and Tony Repelato, Boise, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

A reception was held following the ceremony, at the Chuck-Wagon. Boise. The bride's cake was a three-tiered one, yellow and white trim with flowers and greenery and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The new Mrs. Repelato is a graduate of Borah High School Boise and is employed by the telephone company. The bridegroom served in the U.S. Air Force for about two years, and has been employed by a wrecking service company.

The newlyweds took a honeymoon trip along the Oregon and Washington coast.

JUDY FURNO engaged

August wedding planned

FAIRFIELD — Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Furno, Boise, announce the engagement of their daughter, Judy, to Layne Osborne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Osborne, Fairfield.

Miss Furno is a graduate of Boise High School and attends Boise State University. Osborne is a graduate of Fairfield High School and attends Boise State University where he is a member of the Bronco football team. His grandparents are Mrs. Leona Thomson and Mrs. Jessie Osborne, Jerome.

Osborne and Miss Furno will be graduated from Boise State University in May 1978.

An August 6 wedding is planned in Boise.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the oldest couples who still play duplicate bridge is Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Morrow of Joplin, Mo.

Mrs. Morrow is comparatively young — say about 30. We don't know how old Jed is, but he retired as Bridge Editor of the Dallas News some 25 years ago, and he was not taking early retirement. They are very dear friends of ours, but do need us on occasion.

Today's hand was printed in our column of Aug. 16, 1976. We pointed out that if South plays dummy's king of spades at trick one East is likely to take the ace and shift to the queen of diamonds. ♦ 394 ♦ 8765 ♦ K 97 ♦ 53 ♦ 765 ♦ A 8765 ♦ Q 103 ♦ 53 ♦ A 8765 ♦ Q 103 ♦ 53 ♦ J 1084 ♦ 53 ♦ East-West vulnerable

Ask the Jacobys

A Mississippi reader wants to know what we lead from this:

▲ 394 ♦ 8765 ♦ K 97 ♦ 53 ♦ 765 ♦ A 8765 ♦ Q 103 ♦ 53 ♦ A 8765 ♦ Q 103 ♦ 53 ♦ J 1084 ♦ 53 ♦ East-West vulnerable

The game is rubber bridge and the bidding by opponents has gone one spade-two spades-four spades. We open the king of diamonds. This may cost us a trick, but it may also lead to defeat of the contract if partner holds the right cards. (Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Rupert sewer project low bid raises cost to over $5 million

RUPERT — A low bid nearly $150,000 over the engineer's estimate has slowed the Rupert sewer-lagoon project over $5.2 million.

M. Morris and Sons, Inc., Ogden, Utah, offered the apparent low-base bid of $1.7 million on renovation of the existing sewer plant, construction of pumping stations and other facilities.

Alder Construction, Salt Lake City, was second among the eight bidders on the base portion of the project phase with a bid of $1.6 million.

The base bids and others, completed with the project were referred to the city's consulting engineers, Hamilton and Voeller, to check against project specifications.

The sewer plant renovation and other work in the final phase of the project brought the first bids that topped engineers' estimates.

Galey Construction, Boise, had been awarded contracts on the other two phases of the project, construction of the lagoons four and a half miles northeast of Rupert and installation of the pressure pipeline to the lagoon site. Galey's contract on the lagoons is for $2.9 million and the pipeline contract is for $483,340.

Galey was the high bidder on the plant renovation and pumping stations with a bid of $1.93 million.

Two alternate features on the plant renovation and construction phase made a total of $1.81 million for that part of the project.

Valley Utilities, Inc., of Jerome had apparent low bid of $155,830 on one alternate period, Wayne Wisconsin Co., Salt Lake City, offered apparent low bid of $97,962 on the other, which included instrumentation and control systems.

Tuesday's apparent low bids, added to the pipeline and lagoon contracts, brought the total for system renovation and construction of a new sewage treatment-lagoon system to $5.22 million.

Jack Hammond, engineer at Hamilton and Voeller's Moscow office, said the higher bids on the plant renovation and pump stations apparently reflect contractor concern over possible rising costs for materials and labor over a 15-month construction period.

Region IV Development sets meeting, invites Gov. Evans

WENDELL — An annual meeting for the Region IV Development Association is being planned for April or May with an invitation to Gov. John Evans to be speaker.

Dell Taylor said Wednesday the dinner meeting will depend on when the governor is able to visit the area.

He said the association met earlier this month to discuss membership and make plans for an annual meeting. He said efforts are being made to complete necessary county and community membership and appoint a full board representing the entire region.

The association currently has received membership from Blaine, Camas, Gooding, Latah and Minidoka counties with Cassia County turning down the membership request and other counties having made no decision.

Taylor said with completion of a board, the Economic Development Program for the district will be submitted to the Economic Development Office in Seattle where it will be given a final review before being submitted to Washington, D.C.

On a basis of approval of the Economic Development Program for the region the association will be eligible for obtaining district designation and financing.

Taylor said another meeting may be held in April if there are any new developments or need for working out additional details.

Day truck rollover injures one

COLEY — An 18-wheel truck carrying 17 tons of hay overturned Wednesday afternoon 1 1/2 miles south of Cooley, U.S. 95-A.

Before the day, Idaho Falls, a driver in the truck, reported no injuries on her side and ear and was admitted to Blaine County Hospital. She was reported in good condition and will be kept under observation for a day or more because she is six months pregnant, according to hospital officials.

Her husband, Everett Remond, Eugene Day, was driving the 1974 Ford truck and trailer, according to Donald Green, investigating officer for the Blaine County Sheriff's Office.

Green said Day was coming from Howe on his way to California to deliver the hay. Day said he had headed into Simpson turn on 93-A when he saw several deer in the road and swerved to avoid hitting them, according to Green.

The trailer then pulled the truck into the left lane and turned the 18-wheeler over. The hay was dumped on the highway. Damage to the truck and load was estimated at $10,000 by Green.

Burley man drives into office, corral

BURLEY — A Burley man, corralled his car Wednesday night after driving it through an office building and smashing a corral fence at the Whitte Livestock Office.

Burley police arrested Terry Bruce Omdahl, 34, on a felony charge, driving while intoxicated.

Omdahl drove his car through a small office building at the Whitte Livestock Commission Yards on West Main, shortly after 8:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Police said the car demolished a corral fence and came to a halt inside the corral.

Notified of the accident, a Burley police officer arrived on the scene in time to see Omdahl open the driver's door and step out of the car. Omdahl was not injured.

The car was demolished. Damage to the office and corral fence was estimated at $6,000.

Fans given award

BOZEHUM — The Sun Valley Ketchum Chamber of Commerce presented its first award to a fan of the Sun Valley Company at Bill Jones.

Jones was given a "Doctor of Shaming Degree" as part of the award at the chamber's monthly meeting Thursday.

Jones was given the "degree" in recognition of Sun Valley's attempt to provide good skiing during the driest winter on record, was a snowmaking machine nozzle mounted on a plaque, according to Sarah Michael, Chamber Manager.

Members conceived the award last month and the chamber's board then discussed and approved the idea, Michael said.

News of record

Twin Falls City Police Officer John Hayes, sold police equipment took two hand saws, a camera, wallet and keys from a bus in front of the First United Methodist Church, 360 S. St. E., Tuesday night. Loss was estimated at $470.

Sprinkler design begins

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — Design work has started on a $6.8 million Malad area sprinkler system.

A Boise engineering consulting firm McCarter and Tuller signed a contract with the Soil Conservation Service to start designing the Deep Creek Irrigation Co. sprinkler system.

The design phase is expected to be completed early this fall so bids may be received shortly after that time, said John Orbach, SCS district conservationist in Malad.

The project will probably take two years to complete, Grubb said.

million for private systems installed on their ground. Malad's share, which is about $250,000 to $300,000, and engineering and planning costs will make up the balance of the $6 million.

Thirty to 65 per cent better water usage is expected on the farms involved.

Irrigated acreage will increase from 2,700 acres from the current 600 acres with an expected total income increase in the area of $125,000 per year.

Moisture bypasses Magic Valley

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert areas:
Becoming fair tonight through Saturday. Windy afternoons. Overnight lows tonight: mid-20s. High: temperatures Saturday in the upper 40s.

pressure system moved eastward across southern Idaho Thursday, spreading light snow flurries over the Magic Valley. However, amounts were generally too light to measure.

Heavy snow warnings continue for the mountain areas of Montana, Wyoming, western Colorado, Utah and south-central Nevada. Motorists should be on the alert this weekend for hazardous winter driving conditions, especially over the mountain passes.

Field preparation for and planting outlook for Sunday through Tuesday calls for good conditions through the first part of next week, with the exception of gusty afternoon winds.

Temperatures will be rising into the lower 50s, and overnight lows will drop to the upper 20s.

Idaho dairy producers slate vote

BOISE — Election of representatives to represent producers in three districts on the Idaho Dairy Products Commission are coming up soon.

Each year, elections are conducted by the Department of Agriculture in three of the nine districts covering the state. Those elected serve three-year terms.

Nominations are to be made during April, with the mail ballot elections conducted during May.

Following are the names and addresses of the nominating committee members in each district who are responsible for forming by May 1 three eligible producers whose names are to appear on the district election ballot:

District 1 — (Blaine, Camas, Gering, Jerome, and Lincoln counties), Stan Bolich, Chairman, Route 4, Jerome, ID 83338; J.W. Mrachik, Route 1, Wendell, ID 83355; Roger Mulder, Route 2, Wendell, ID 83355; and Dale Eden, Route 1, Box 189, Gooding ID 83330.

Three candidates are to be nominated. A qualified producer is defined in the law as a citizen over 25 years of age and a resident of the state of Idaho and the district which he represents; and for five years last preceding his election have been actually engaged in producing dairy products within the state of Idaho.

The law also provides that additional qualified producers, in each district, may be nominated by a petition of nomination, signed by not less than 25 active milk producers, each of whom shall reside in the district where the nominee resides. These petitions must also be submitted to the director, Department of Agriculture by May 1.

Low mark likely

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Reclamation Bureau says the water level at Lake Lowell may drop to an all-time low this year.

Robert J. Brown, project chief for the bureau said the lake, which has a capacity of 17,000 acre feet, could be down to 8,000 acre feet at the end of the season.

"We've never had it that low, so we don't know how much water there would be," Brown said. "It's never been that low since it was built 50 years ago."

Louisiana sues over sugar price

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The state Attorney General William Guste said Thursday he has filed suit against 14 national sugar refiners seeking treble damages for alleged price-fixing on refined sugar sold to Louisiana between 1970 and 1975.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, where it was consolidated with similar actions against the same refiners.

The refiners are charged with violation of Section 1 and 3 of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

by joining in a conspiracy to fix and maintain the price of refined sugar.

Beach, (Fla.), CPO International, Michigan Sugar Co., National Home Products Corp., RSN Projects Inc., (formerly National Sugar Refining Co.), Savannah Foods and Industries Inc., Sureset Corp., United Brands Co., and Revere Sugar Refinery Corp.

Subsidies legal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Thursday his lawyers agree he could legally make direct subsidy payments to sugar processors as part of a plan to bolster prices for hardpressed growers.

Bergland told Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., at a House Agriculture Committee hearing that, "from a policy point of view, it's not (an option) I think I can recommend."

Later, however, he told a reporter he did not mean to rule out the possibility of a plan including payments to sugar growing firms which also refine sugar.

Bergland said he has been exploring a number of options in developing recommendations — which are also expected to include a cut in sugar import quotas — aimed at raising raw sugar prices for growers who have been losing money.

He repeated, however, earlier assurances that his proposals would be tailored to the reality that rising sugar prices would encourage continuing inroads into sugar markets by producers of a cheaper, competitive sweetener made from corn.

Idaho hop stocks up

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today a record high total of hops were held in storage by growers, dealers and brewers March 1.

Some 75 million pounds represented a five per cent increase over stocks at the same time which was a 12 per cent increase over 1975.

Brewers' holdings at 63.5 million pounds accounted for 84 per cent of the total and dealers held 11.4 million pounds with growers maintaining 380,000 pounds.

Sixty-nine per cent of the total storage was in dry hops and domestic hops accounted for 65 per cent of all dry hops. The remaining 35 per cent were foreign in origin.

Price supports may rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Agriculture Committee members warned Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland Thursday Congress may raise President Carter's proposed price supports. They said the administration plan was "unacceptable."

The former Minnesota congressman outlined Carter's year farm bill for the committee. It contains modest price supports in farm income guarantees.

The White House, Bergland added, had vetoed his plan to propose stronger price supports.

"This committee will probably increase" recommended support levels, Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., told Bergland.

Rep. Keith G. Sebelius, R-Iowa, said he reacted to the proposals with "disbelief" and called them unacceptable.

Compared with what this program contains for milk, corn and cotton, the wheat farmers have been kicked in the teeth," Sebelius charged.

Rep. Richard Nix, D-Minn., echoed the support hike forecast in an interview, saying committee Democrats were "very dissatisfied" with the administration proposals. He said the supports were lower than those adopted in 1975 by the committee, on which Bergland sat until January.

Asked what the administration would do if Congress raised his support figures, Bergland warned that Carter is serious about efforts to hold down federal spending.

Sierra statement shows operating losses

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sierra Life Insurance Co. experienced financial operating losses and a decline in the number of policyholders during the year, according to the company's annual report.

The Twin Falls-based firm's annual report, filed with the Idaho Department of Insurance last month, says that during the year, Sierra:

- Suffered $166,146 in operational losses, or paying sharply reduced policyholder dividends, the year's operating losses totaled $661.
- Lost 732 Idaho policyholders. In the period, the company issued 107 new insurance policies. The net loss of 625 policies was about 6.5 per cent of the total number of its policies in Idaho.
- Had income from premium and annuity considerations of $1.5 million, down by over $1 million from the previous year.

- Made only a 3.45 per cent return on investments.
- Spent $335,742 in legal battles, largely with insurance regulators, from several states, and the Times-News.

Despite the loss business and operational losses, the company reported both its assets and liabilities rose during the year.

The admitted assets claimed by the company rose $582,471 to $12 million in 1976. Liabilities kept pace, rising $576,380 to $10.3 million during the year, the report says.

Admitted assets are those deemed to meet certain state standards for insurance companies' investments.

One of Sierra's biggest gains in assets, according to the report, was "properties acquired in satisfaction of debt."

The company's properties acquired in satisfaction of debt amounted to nearly $1.4 million at the end of 1976, up from only $282,168 a year earlier.

When an insurance company loans money, property often is put up as security for the loan. If the loan is not paid back, the company can foreclose on the property and acquire it in satisfaction of the debt.

Sierra's loans secured by land have been a major issue in cases where states have questioned the financial strength of the company's assets.

In another category of assets, a hefty increase was reported in the amount of common stock held by Sierra.

At year-end 1976, the company's common stock assets totaled over $1.9 million, up about $1.2 million from a year earlier, the report says.

This increase appears to be primarily a result of Sierra's acquisition of a new subsidiary, the Life Management Corp. of Twin Falls.

According to Sierra's annual statement, it acquired 100,000 shares of Life Management's stock, valued at nearly $1.4 million. This acquisition made Life Management a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sierra, the report says.

In payment for the stock, Sierra transferred two deeds to land on Molokai Island, Hawaii, to Life Management on Sept. 30, 1976, according to the report. Sierra valued that property at nearly $1.4 million.

According to Idaho Secretary of State records, Life Management was incorporated on Sept. 22 by Sierra President Fred Frazier, Robert Nunnely, Sierra's secretary and treasurer, and Max Matthews, the company's chief accountant.

Each was listed as an incorporator of Life Management and each initially subscribed to one share in the corporation. No other subscribers were listed.

The Sierra annual statement also indicates its own stockholders have put more money into the company than they have received in return.

The statement says that stockholders have paid more than $3.2 million into the insurance company in surplus funds since Sierra was organized, but have received no cash dividends and only $133,585 in stock dividends during that time. The company surplus was reported at only $763,922 at year's end, less than a fourth of the amount of surplus paid in.

In another area, the annual statement shows a sharp decline in the company's investment income. Sierra's total investment income for 1976 was reported at $373,003 — a 3.45 per cent return on its mean assets during the year. The year before, Sierra's investment income was reported at nearly twice as much, $650,255.

TF bridge costs eyed

TWIN FALLS — Engineers from the consulting firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, Spokane, will be in Twin Falls Monday to begin inspection of the remains of the Rock Creek bridge on Pole Line road which burned Wednesday night.

Floyd Dayley, manager of the Twin Falls Highway District, said the firm designed the $17,000 improvement project on the bridge in 1972 and has since made inspections.

"We selected the firm because they are familiar with the bridge and should be able to give us a timely estimate on cost of reconstruction," Dayley said.

A brush fire, whipped out of control by high winds late Wednesday, spread to the bridge, destroying the wooden supports, flooring and railings. The engineers will be checking the remaining steel towers and bracing to determine if at least part of them can be salvaged in the reconstruction project.

Dayley said the situation leaves the highway district without any immediate means of financing.

Dayley said the highway district is presently without a solution to financing reconstruction of such a costly structure. State Highway Engineer Howard Johnson, Shoshone, inspected the bridge Thursday and said he would make inquiries as to possible federal funds for the reconstruction.

Dayley said today he could not even guess how long the county will be without the bridge. Highway districts, he said, are permitted by law to issue bonds, but this would be a lengthy process. Federal funding, while probably available since the bridge is part of the Federal Aid System, would take as long as two years.

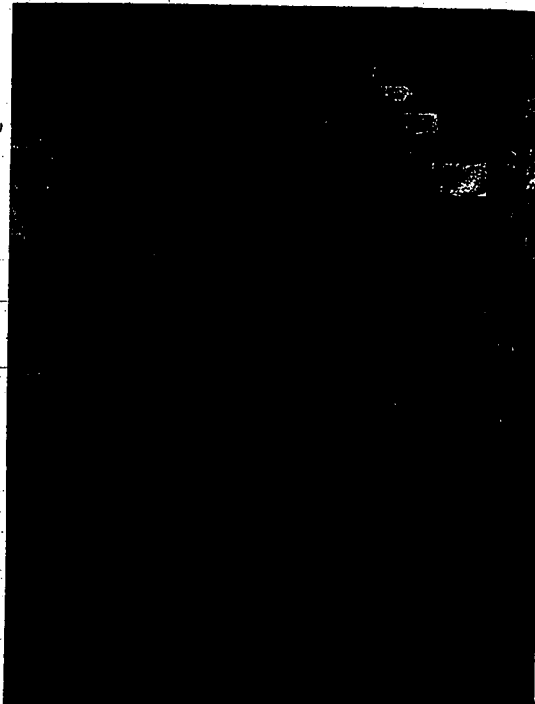

"I would say it would be at least the end of the summer before we could design a reconstruction project and let bids if we had the money now," he said.

Dayley said the traffic count of the 115-foot-high bridge is heavy and it is used extensively as a farm-to-market road from the Filer and Buhl area to Twin Falls. Traffic is now being detoured over U.S. 30 to the south.

Timbers from the bridge continued to smolder today with only the steel portions of the structure intact.

Dirt barricades have been built at either end of the bridge to keep vehicles from going into the canyon, Dayley said, and intersections are signed on both the east and west sides of the bridge to warn motorists.

Sheriff's officers are continuing to investigate the fire, but no cause has been determined.

Streamers still smolder

AN estimated $300,000 to $500,000 loss was suffered by the Twin Falls Highway District Wednesday night when a brush fire spread into timbers on the Rock Creek bridge on Pole Line Road northwest of Twin Falls. Some of the wooden streamers continued to smolder this morning.

Star witness tells of fencing activity

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The star witness for the prosecution in a magistrate court preliminary hearing testified Thursday that on four occasions last year he sold stolen merchandise to Alley Bar and Motel owner Ralph Faught.

"He (Faught) knew right where they (the stolen goods) came from all along," testified Amos David Pamperien. He said that he had been the only one to meet with Faught in the transactions.

A warrant for Faught's arrest on four counts of receiving stolen property was issued on Jan. 26. Police at first were unable to locate the motel owner, but the next day Faught turned himself in.

At arraignment, Faught's attorneys requested a preliminary hearing on the felony charges to determine if Faught should be bound over to district court. That hearing began Thursday morning before Magistrate Paul Smith.

According to Pamperien's attorney Golden Bennett, Pamperien agreed to testify against Faught in return for the dropping of two of three counts of receiving stolen property against Pamperien and a promise of probation recommendation on the third. A withheld judgment has been issued in Pamperien's case. Bennett added, and a pre-sentence investigation is underway.

The alleged thefts on which the charges against Faught are based involved diamonds, power tools and more than a dozen television sets.

The diamonds allegedly came from two separate thefts, one from the residence of Jane Lebovitz, Twin Falls, and a second from Herrett's Jewelers, Twin Falls.

The power tools were allegedly stolen from Nelson's, Inc., Twin Falls, and the television sets from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Twin Falls chief of detectives Tim Qualls displayed several routers, a grinder and other power tools allegedly taken from Nelson's. Qualls testified the tools had been recovered at Faught's residence after the issuance of a search warrant.

Nelson's purchasing agent and assistant manager Stephen Webb then took the stand and identified the power tools as those allegedly taken from his store during a July theft. Webb said markings on remains of price tags, a peculiar method of taping on tags and the shape and brand of price stickers determined that the tools were "definitely" those taken from Nelson's.

Over defense objections, Judge Smith admitted all but one of the power tools into evidence.

At the start of the afternoon session, prosecutor Mel Edwards called Pamperien to the stand.

Pamperien testified that he first met Faught last year through Twin Falls pawn shop operator Jack Clough. Clough was one of four others, along with Faught and Pamperien, originally charged in connection with the case.

Pamperien said he wanted to meet Faught because Kim Thompson, another of those charged, had asked him to sell some stolen diamonds and he thought Faught might buy them.

Pamperien said he met Faught alone at the Alley and offered to sell the diamonds for $1,200.

The first meeting with Faught took place in "April or May," Pamperien said.

He said Faught sent him to see jeweler Glenn Barth, who "took the diamonds, looked for the clarity in them, and he weighed them."

Pamperien said an attempt to sell Barth the gems was unsuccessful and a few days later he sold them to Faught.

"It was about $100 that he settled on," he testified.

The 25-year-old carpenter said he told Faught the diamonds were stolen.

"Before I received the money, I told him the diamonds were stolen," he said.

Pamperien said he next met with Faught to sell him the power tools, which Pamperien had received from Gordon Moseley, a suspect police have not found.

He said he told Faught the tools had been stolen from Nelson's. He said Faught had asked him earlier to keep an eye open for tools and "if I ran across anything to let him know."

Pamperien said Faught was told the tools were stolen right after the sale.

He said he next sold Faught diamonds which Faught was told "came from Herrett's."

Pamperien said he had received the gems again from Kim Thompson.

Blaine County unemployment rate climbs to 23.4%

By CHEROSTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Blaine County's February unemployment rate soared to 23.4 per cent, reflecting the effects on the county's work force of a resort winter season stricken by drought.

Preliminary figures show the seasonally unadjusted February unemployment rate has risen 1.1 per cent higher than January's 22.3 per cent unemployment figure, according to Tom Valasek, manager of the Idaho Department of Employment Job Service Office in Blaine County.

More than one fifth of Blaine County's workers were unemployed in February because of the continued lack of snow in the driest winter on record here. And according to Valasek more of the same can be expected in the area until May, when the summer season begins for Sun Valley, local building contractors and other industries.

The 23.4 per cent February unemployment rate is twice as high as the February unemployment rate in 1976, which was 11.1 per cent, according to Department of Employment records.

The January unemployment rate last year was 11.2 per cent, about half of what it was this January at 22.3 per cent.

This February, Valasek says, his office paid out $131,281 in unemployment benefits to Idaho claimants. During February, 1976, he says his office paid out $78,361 or $52,020 less in unemployment benefits.

The corresponding figures for January show the same trend. This January the Idaho Department of Employment paid out $113,568 in Blaine County while last January it paid out only $94,247 or $19,321 less in unemployment benefits.

"As far as our office is concerned, we have been in slack all winter," Valasek says. "We've never had a claims load drop off except for one week this winter."

"I've got a graph here that's been bouncing around between 900 and 1050 in February and March," he remarked about a department claims graph showing weekly unemployment claimants to his office. "That's kind of a plateau we've come upon since the end of January. The claims load did take a dip in the first week of January right after Christmas, when the load dropped to about 550. But then it started up again and in the last weeks of January it was right around 900."

If the slack season for this resort area has not occurred outright throughout the winter, it will begin shortly.

The Sun Valley Lodge closed Sunday to reopen Wednesday for three days before closing for the season. Resort officials say mountain operations will probably stop Sunday and other resort facilities have already closed until the summer season formally begins on May 20. This winding down of operations at Sun Valley occurs nearly a month before it was originally scheduled.

Northside water cut seen

JEROME — Farmers served by the North Side Canal Co. will receive about 70 per cent of normal water delivery this season, Ted Diehl, manager of the North Side Canal Co., said Thursday.

This is the first time since 1961 that farmers served by the firm have not received 100 per cent of delivery. According to Bernice Johnson, secretary-treasurer, 1961 was the last poor water year. There was about 70 per cent of delivery that year.

If the water supply changes during the season, Diehl said, the water will be adjusted accordingly, but at present the canal company is planning to deliver 70 per cent through the season, from April 1 to Oct. 1.

Diehl also said water needed to finish best and potato crops should be available after Oct. 1. However, he said when a farmer uses his allotted acre feet for the season, his headgates will be closed.

It appears that the second and third irrigations will receive about 3.4 acre feet per share at the headgate, Diehl said. In the past few years farmers have been using an average of about 4.8 acre feet per share.

through Saturday. The awards banquet will be held this evening with Eugene D. Pippitt, Twin Falls, worshipful grand master of Masons in Idaho, presenting distinguished civic service trophies.

The state sweetheart pageant will follow at 8 p.m. and a bowling tournament at 10 p.m.

Delegates will attend the annual convective banquet Saturday at 5:30 p.m. in the National Guard Armory with installation of new officers scheduled at that time. A semi-formal annual ball will follow.

Convective headquarters are in the Holiday Inn.

Indoor rodeo tonight

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's first indoor intercollegiate rodeo begins tonight in the College of Southern Idaho's new exposition center.

Twelve college rodeo teams will compete in the event, which is sponsored by Aggie Rodeo Club.

As an added attraction, representatives from the Twin Falls media services will be on hand to provide expertise in the calf-tying event.

A side show will feature the 1976 National Finals Rodeo (NFR) bull that cost Sandy Kirby the championship. Also featured will be "Sunday Punch," the NFR 1976 saddle bronc of the year.

The CSI rodeo team recently tied with Brigham Young University for first place all-around at a rodeo held at Weber State College in Ogden, Utah.

In that rodeo, team member Wade Prescott placed first all-around and Dusty Qualls took third place in bull riding.

The CSI rodeo team is coached by Shane Davis, an 11 times qualifier for NFR and world champion saddle bronc rider in 1965, 1967 and 1968. Davis also teaches rodeo schools and clinics held in the exposition center.

By rodeo time CSI hopes to have 2,500 seats ready in the center which has a 200 by 300 foot heated arena.

CSI's rodeo queen and students will lead the grand entry at each rodeo performance.

This year's queen is Betty Moore, Heyburn. First attendant is Sue Butler, Twin Falls, and second attendant is Sally Johnson, Mackay.

Today's competition will be at 8 p.m. and Saturday's two competitions will be at 3 and 8 p.m.

Adult tickets are $1.50 in advance and $3 at the door. Children, 13 or under, will be charged $1.50.

Fall victim identified

GOODING — The youth who was killed Wednesday afternoon when he fell 300 feet in the Malad River canyon near Tuttle was identified by Gooding county sheriff's officers as Rodney Gene Mangum, 18.

He was the son of Mrs. Lawrence Severe, Gooding, and Conrad Mangum, Yakima, Wash. Officers said that the name be withheld Thursday until the father could be notified. He was found shortly after press time.

The boy and a companion, Clare Bryant, 28, had decided to climb the canyon wall instead of taking the trail their party of six young men had used descending. The group was searching for driftwood in the Malad canyon.

The other four in the party turned back after a short distance up the wall and returned to the trail.

Bryant could not get around a rock and Steve Loucks, 19, was dispatched to get a rope. As Mangum, who had not recovered around the rock, and was above Bryant, came back down to the ledge where Bryant was stalled, he slipped and fell. Officers said young Mangum was killed instantly.

DeMolay confab opens in TF

TWIN FALLS — About 350 delegates from throughout Idaho opened business sessions of the 23rd annual Idaho State DeMolay convective TF Twin Falls this morning.

Election of new officers by voting ballot was underway this morning and the state ritualistic contests scheduled this afternoon.

Delegates arrived Thursday for registration with the public opening of the convective Thursday at 7 p.m. Business sessions which opened this morning continue

Markets

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower Friday in a generally active trading session on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 6.65 points Thursday, was off 1.08 points, or 33.59, shortly after the opening.

In the past six sessions, the Dow average has fallen 32.31 points, a development indicating that bargain hunting may be in prospect.

Declines led advances, 147 to 118, among the 42 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

Investors were disturbed by the Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that the nation's basic consumer supply surged $1.7 billion in the latest reporting week. The second sharp increase in two weeks could put pressure on the Fed to tighten credit, which could result in higher interest rates.

The possibility of higher rates has been troubling the market for some time.

Analysts said investors also remained concerned about inflation.

Thursday afternoon news conference President Carter stunned many observers by acknowledging inflation would run at about a 6 percent rate in the coming months.

Carter promised to unveil an anti-inflation program within the next couple of weeks. He said some of the recent government economic reports were misleading because they reflected the impact of the severe winter.

Futures market declines

CHICAGO — Generally lower, with a few gains.

That was how the commodity futures market traded Thursday.

The May delivery of Western russet potatoes lost 15 cents, closing at 7.70 per hundredweight. The final price was 4 cents over the lows, but well below the high of 7.88.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds opened slightly higher, failed to break the 8.42 mark basis May, then slid sharply lower on heavy trade selling blamed on a stagnant cash market and lack of other news. Nearby April advanced to 6.97 before a rally at the close brought it back to 7.00. May settled 21 cents down and distant were 4 to 17 cents off at 2.70 to 1.60.

Wheat edged higher in stable trading based on steady cumulative demand by a wire house with overseas accounts, which joined with scalper short covering to offset selling. Israel and Portugal bought.

Continued liquidation was the key element of the soybean complex, all three pits closing mixed, but generally lower.

Oil's losses were near the limit, hampering price recovery in the rest of the complex. Beans ended mixed.

Idaho State's party's over — but what a party!

POCATELLO — The party's finally over for Idaho State basketball. But what a party! The 1977 Bengals were 25-5 and are now recognized as the finest game team in ISU athletic history.

Jim Killingsworth and company also posted the biggest single sports victory in the school's 76 years, the 76-75 win over UCLA.

Idaho State bowed out as one of America's eight best teams, and the Bengals bowed out to Nevada, Las Vegas, the team that has to be favored to win the national championship.

Headlines across the country generally had the word "stun" in referring to the win over UCLA. Pocatelloans must be pardoned for asking why the win was so stunning. ISU was 24-4 going into the game and coming off a big win over UCLA champ Long Beach State. UCLA was also 24-4 on the season. Yet Pac-8 coaches were decrying the fact that the Big Sky Conference had an automatic berth into the NCAA Tourney.

Sportswriters asked if Idaho State really deserved athletic scholarships, and if so, why?

Idaho State's post-season performance should have closed the door on any talk of denying the conference its automatic qualification.

Idaho State's performance, probably didn't but that's another story.

What did ISU Coach Killingsworth think of Idaho State's overall performance in the NCAA's and the 1977 season? "The people of Idaho are satisfied, and they pay my salary. Actually, our win over UCLA was the biggest win anybody will get in this tournament. In 20 years, people will forget who won the 1977 NCAA championship. They will still remember who beat UCLA."

Killingsworth lauded his team's character. "We have high-class people on this team," he said. "We have people who are outstanding students (3.01 team grade point average first semester) and citizens. I'm proud of what we've accomplished this year, and I'm proud of my players as individuals."

Killingsworth lavished praise on everyone for the UCLA game, and he attributed the Las Vegas loss (107-90) to UNLC's hot-shooting and great defense on Steve Hayes, and ISU's tiredness. "You can't stop a team like Las Vegas from scoring for very long," he said. "Sooner or later they'll get hot and then you're in trouble. They denied Steve the ball with their press and Larry Moffet's defense. And we got worn down. We got awful tired but at halftime I didn't even mention it to the players because I thought that would make it worse."

Killingsworth, nicknamed "Killer" by locals, added an extra syllable to his nickname at Provo. He's now called "Giant-Killer."

Four seniors closed out their college careers last Saturday, and three of them will be ranked at the top of the list of Idaho State basketball greats. The departing four are three-time All-Big Sky center Steve Hayes, All-Big Sky guard Ed Thompson, and All-Big Sky forward Greg Griffin. Center Stan Klos will also graduate.

The three starting seniors burned their names into professional scouts' minds with their performances. Hayes tallied 43 points in the two games, and Thompson had 41. Both made the Western Regional All-Tournament Team. Griffin played a key defensive role against UCLA, blocking Marques Johnson and David Greenwood off the boards in the second half

World need new pro sport? Hot air ballooning suggested by southerner

ATLANTA (UPI) — Grant Weyman admits he's probably hoping against the wind, but he believes there may be room for professional balloon racing in an already overcrowded sports world.

LeMoyne, Me 'n Eds gain semi-finals

FILER — LeMoyne Realty and Me 'n Eds Pizza moved into the semi-finals of the Magic Valley outlaw tournament with victories Thursday night.

Due to the unbalanced 24-team bracket, the two will advance to games at 3 and 4 p.m. Saturday, awaiting challenges from a pair of quarterfinal battles related Friday evening at the Filer high school gymnasium.

In the single elimination tournament, the six losers of Thursday night were eliminated.

Magic Valley Packer, guided by Billie's 20 points, ousted Donnelly's Sporting Goods-Factory Outlet Ties 53-41. D. Bair had eight for the losers. Dugger's 14 points helped Atkinson's. W. R. Sons sink Christian Center 51-32 despite 10 points by Randy Shank.

LeMoyne pulled away in the middle of the second half to defeat Northside News 63-64 as Dean Hayes set the pace with 20 points. Jim Anderson blazed for 22 for the News. Me 'n Eds had a balanced scoring attack,

"We're not going to rival football or basketball," said the founder of the brand new World Professional Balloon Association. "But we are offering an alternative for those people who are growing tired of other sports.

"Overexposure is one mistake we'll never make. That's what has happened to tennis. It was going great for awhile. But, soon, there was so much of it, people turned away. Overexposure can spell the demise of any sport."

The WPBA is making its debut at an amusement park just west of Atlanta the second weekend in April with a $5,000 race that really isn't a race at all, but, rather, a test of accuracy.

"Ballooning is a spectacle," said Weyman, more publicist than promoter. "It makes you a kid again. Like watching the Wizard of Oz." But the thrill comes in watching the balloons lift off and land, not while they are drifting with the wind.

The best thing about the WPBA event is that it's free.

"I don't know how we could charge anything unless we ran it in a box canyon," said Weyman. "It's kind of hard to charge tickets when you don't have the slightest idea where the race will end."

The problem with hot-air balloon racing is that the winds determine not only how fast the balloons will fly — but also in which direction.

"We'll send out a target balloon anywhere from three to 10 miles and the competing balloon which lands closest to it is the winner," said Weyman. "Some people like to chase the balloons in their cars so that they can watch the finish. But most watch the liftoffs and then go home."

There are only about 1,300 licensed balloonists and maybe 1,000 balloons around. But Weyman insists the sport has "mass appeal."

"There is something awe-inspiring about balloons," said Weyman. "Even in a day when airplanes are so commonplace, people still seem to get a thrill out of watching an eight-story-high balloon blast off and drift across the sky."

This may sound like a lot of hot air, but the way Weyman sees it, a lot of people are tired of paying big money to attend big-time sports events.

"There's a backlash in sports," he insists. "All that money that's being paid for these big salaries is filtering down to the spectators. People are getting tired of shelling out. They are looking for alternative interests."

A really good balloon will run you about $10,000, but if you just want to take off from your back yard for a flight around the neighborhood, you can pick up an economy model for about $4,000.

Of course, you've got to pay for those 10 hours of lessons the FAA requires before it will license you. The amount of propane you'll burn (at 35 cents a gallon) will cost you only about $3 an hour — but, if you aren't careful, you may burn up your airbag from time to time.

"I've seen balloons that had holes burned in them big enough to drive a car through," said Weyman. "But, they'd still fly."

"We don't promote ballooning as a dare-devil sport," said Weyman.

Seattle Slew faces twelve challengers

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) — Undeclared Seattle Slew, who made an astonishing 3-year-old debut here two weeks ago, takes on a surprisingly large field of 12 other colts Saturday in the $139,400 Flamingo Stakes.

Horsemen expect the trip over the mile and an eighth on dirt to answer some important questions about the dark brown Bold Rensselaire colt and trainer Billy Turner expects those answers to be yes.

Seattle Slew, who set the Hialeah track record for seven furlongs on March 9 in his first race as a 3-year-old at 1:20.35, has never been more than a mile and has never been around two turns.

record by nearly two seconds.

Auburn freshman Scott Spann edged Furniss in the 200-yard individual medley 1:48.26, also an American and NCAA record.

But USC, which has won eight titles, had 11 point-getters — more than twice as many as any other team — and took a 17-12 59 let over second-place Alabama.

"We actually are not doing what I thought we would do," said Trojan coach Peter Daland. "Neither are the other top teams, however, some outside points are getting in. We're swimming very tough."

Indiana, with Jim Montgomery blistering the final leg, edged USC with a 3:17.14 clocking in the 400-yard medley relay.

USC piles up lead

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Joe Bottom, setting a record in the 50-yard freestyle, and strong second-place finishes by John Naber and Bruce Furniss, led USC's swimming juggernaut towards a fourth straight title Thursday in the 54th annual NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships at Cleveland State University.

Bottom won the finals in 19:75, just off the 19:70 NCAA record he set in the preliminaries. He and second-place finisher Gary Schatz (19:94) are the only persons ever to clock under 20 seconds in the event.

Tim Shaw of Long Beach State beat Naber in the 500-yard freestyle in an American and NCAA-record 4:17.39, breaking his own record by nearly two seconds.

HAMPDEN, Mass. (UPI) — Some organizations raise funds by selling candy or flowers. The Hampden House Club sells manure.

"Production seems to be the easy side of our business," Club President Edward E. Crowley said.

Crowley said members' horses provide an "unlimited production line for the manure which members pack in 50 to 60 pound bags. The bags sell for $1 each as fertilizer.

Crowley says money so raised goes for eye research projects.

Sierra report shows changes

The annual statement also shows that dividends to policyholders were sharply reduced in 1976. That year's dividends totaled $129,535, compared with $224,305 a year earlier.

In an attachment to the annual report, Sierra's consulting actuaries stated that the company's direct litigation costs stood at $335,742 for the year.

"Management believes that future litigation expenses will be minimal compared to 1976," the attachment states.

During the year, Sierra has conducted lawsuits against insurance officials in Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana and suits against private persons and companies in other states, including the Times-News. The insurance company already has dropped a substantial amount of its litigation.

Legal fees paid to its lawyers make up about $26,000 of its total legal costs, according to the annual statement.

An Oklahoma City lawyer, A. Bob Jordan, the company's highest-paid attorney during the year, received about $95,000, the report shows.

In Idaho, Sierra's firm of Coughlan, Imhoff and Lynch was paid more than $42,000.

Part of one $6,123 payment to the Boise firm was made for work regarding the "New Mexico grand jury," according to an accounting made on the annual statement.

A year ago Sierra Life Insurance Co. President Fred Frazier said that Sierra was "not involved" in secret federal grand jury proceedings being held in New Mexico. He made this statement following reports that the grand jury had subpoenaed records of Sierra and its New Mexico subsidiary, Sandia Life.

Sierra's Idaho business declined in 1976, according to the annual statement.

The statement says Sierra had 8,963 Idaho policyholders at the end of last year, down from 9,588 policyholders the year before.

It shows that Sierra had 64 non-Idaho policyholders at year-end 1976, a gain of 8 policyholders.

At year-end 1975 Sierra sold almost all of its non-Idaho policies to its New Mexico subsidiary, Sandia Life.

Sierra President Frazier was not available for comment on the annual statement.

Vermont offers to annex popular resort islands

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — Can the "salty castoffs" from the islands of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket find happiness in land of milk, honey and syrup?

The Vermont House thinks so.

Lawmakers unanimously passed a resolution Thursday, offering to annex the two popular resort islands, which have announced their intention to secede from Massachusetts.

The resolution, introduced by Rep. Hugh Moffett, D-Brandon, asked Vermont "to offer a refuge to these salty castoffs" and urged the governor to send two emissaries — one Democrat and one Republican — to "open talks" with officials of the two islands.

"There is no reason the natives of the mountains, the land of milk, honey and syrup, cannot dwell happily forever with the tidal tribes and cat-chers of the cod," Moffett said.

Gov. Richard Snelling also sent a "letter" Thursday to a local newspaper on Martha's Vineyard, welcoming the islands.

Vermont is the third state to offer to adopt the two islands, which declared their "independence" from Massachusetts this week to protest a new legislative redistricting plan that would eliminate their two state representatives.

Connecticut and Rhode Island have also offered to take in the scenic resort islands, which draw thousands of tourists and millions of their dollars each summer.

A bill of secession would have to be approved by the arms reduction talks with Russian leaders.

The letter praised Carter for making "a strong commitment to human rights" part of U.S. foreign policy.

"Our national concern for human rights is no less valid today than it was 200 years ago," the senators said.

Massachusetts Legislature and Congress before. The islands could join another state.

In a letter to the Vineyard

Gazette, Snelling noted that Vermont declared its independence from the claims of both New Hampshire and New York 200 years ago this month.

"Because representation and local control are so important to Vermonters, we feel a particular kinship to you," he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has selected Eleanor Holmes Norton to head the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission — an appointment some of Carter's feminist critics are praising.

White House sources Thursday disclosed the selection of Mrs. Norton, a 39-year-old black lawyer who currently serves as New York City's commissioner of human rights.

"We're so pleased!" said Jane McMichael, executive director of the National Women's Political Caucus. "It shows that the President does understand our concerns and is listening to our concerns."

Last week, the Women's Valley Briefs

Caucus criticized Carter for placing women in only 17 percent of the top-level jobs in his administration.

The Norton appointment was seen as a major victory for the caucus and other feminist groups. The AFL-CIO, the NAACP and the Urban League had been supporting another candidate for the position, and some had portrayed it as a battle between feminist groups and labor.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to carry through with whatever you have already started but that needs more work on it. You find some unexpected circumstance or annoyance that can cause you to change your thinking.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle tasks that have been left undone; then get to those vital letters that need writing. Avoid a situation that leads to trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study further into a plan that will bring you a greater abundance in the future. Plan needed improvements to property.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care of personal matters first; then get into other activities. Plan to do some entertaining soon or accept an invitation extended to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Clear up confidential matters then set up a whole new set of circumstances for yourself. Try not arguing with a loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good time to assist friends with their problems and show you are loyal, understanding. Not a good time for entertaining. Avoid hassling.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good time to handle a public matter that could add prestige and better credit. Try not to argue with anyone. Shop early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to have a more worthwhile existence in the future and then put ideas to work. Show the proper attitude toward a new friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your intuition is fine so use it to best advantage along with your good judgment. Show more devotion to a loved one and get fine results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Understand what is your part of any agreement with allies and carry through efficiently. Get into some civic work which is good for you.

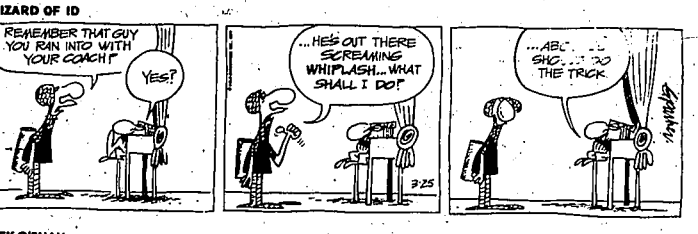

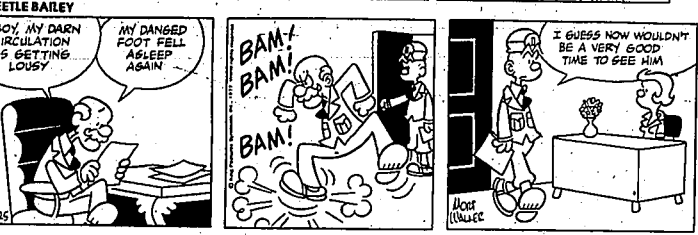

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better way to get your ideas working in a most clever way and get excellent results. Look for new items to add to wardrobe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy early and put finest talents to work. Plan time for recreation also. Home is your best bet for now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of household chores and then take health treatments you need. Keep necessary appointments. Take no risks with credit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be loaded with talent, but the force here will manifest itself early and the education should be slanted in such directions. Education should be an academic one. Success will come early and money should be saved for possible reverses later in life.

Client wants to know if that bygone bit of nonsense known as streaking occurred worldwide. Not quite. Besides North America, it was seen in Australia and Western Europe, including Great Britain. Don't recall any streaker reports out of China and the Soviet Union. As for Africa, the vice president of Kenya set the continental pattern when he announced quite seriously: "Any foreigner caught streaking in this country, will be placed nude on the first outbound aircraft."

The rider traditionally mounts the horse from the left side. The milkster traditionally milks the cow from the right side. Why this difference has never been adequately explained as far as I know.

Men who smuggle dope across borders conceal it in their cars. Women who do so hide it on their own bodies. Usually, usually.

Man is believed to be the only animal that regularly repeats regularly sleeps on its back.

SAFE DRIVING

Best and briefest advice I ever heard on how to operate a car safely came from a Detroit trucker: "Just drive like everybody else is crazy."

If there aren't about 40 kinds of poisons in your household, that scaterdoyour just isn't the average American home, according to the researchers.

History records that Robin Hood used a short bow, not a long bow, please note.

Q. "You quoted a dietitian as saying, 'If you eat slowly, you'll eat less.' How much less?"

A. Depends on the size of your family, no doubt. Don't know, don't know. Will check further. Stand by.

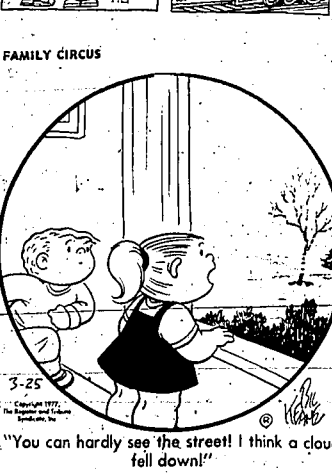

APPLAUSE

In old Rome, this actor or that one used to hire a claque, a small group of people who were supposed to show large appreciation for "bad actor's skill. On cue, the head of the claque whispered "plaudite" meaning clap hands. Our Language man says the similarity of the Latin "plaudite" to our word "applause."

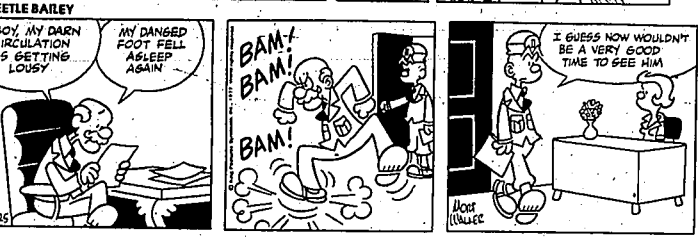

Best way to improve your slining posture maybe is to adjust your car's rearview mirror to a position where you can see out the back window only by sitting straight up. Thereafter, every time you need to check the action behind you, you automatically resume that perfect stance.

Podgorny hears complaint

DAR ES SALAAM (UPI) — President Julius Nyerere Thursday welcomed Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny about unkept Khrushchev promises and the presence of Russian warships in the Indian Ocean in three hours of talks.

Podgorny, spearheading a major Soviet diplomatic offensive in the East, especially Rhodesia, later flew to the former slave trader island of Zanzibar for a day of sightseeing.

Nyerere's press spokesman Sammy Mide said after the "second day of talks" between the two that "the discussions centered on international issues including the Middle East, disarmament and world peace."

Mide said the question of southern Africa, especially Rhodesia, will be discussed in depth at their next meeting Friday afternoon. Nyerere was expected to ask Moscow to increase military supplies to battle national guerrillas operating from Mozambique in their effort to topple the white minority regime.

Podgorny Wednesday night pledged "continued" Soviet backing for the liberation movements, but southern sources quickly noted he had not offered increased Soviet aid to the guerrillas.

Rhodesian black nationalist leader Robert Mugabe said recently the major factor impeding rapid progress toward black rule in Rhodesia was a shortage of weapons from both Russia and China.

Mide said Thursday's "meeting was of a general nature on matters of common concern to the two countries" including bilateral cooperation.

"However, the sources said the talks on 'disarmament' likely centered on the presence of Soviet warships in the Indian Ocean. Tanzania has been a strong advocate of making the Indian Ocean a "zone of peace" and excluding all warships and bases, both Soviet and American.

Divisions and cool relations between Dar Es Salaam and Moscow surfaced again during the talks over the past two days.

The sources said Nyerere was "critical" of the fact that the Soviets have not kept their promise made eight years ago to build a major dam in Tanzania.

On Wednesday night, Nyerere, divided-Liberia, Union for the small quantity of aid given Tanzania and other independent Third World countries compared with Western aid.

Gun laws reducing city crime

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has virtually reduced violent crime in Boston, Chicago and Washington by intensive gun law enforcement, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms reported Thursday.

In an interim report to Congress on "Operation Cue," funded in response to a proposal by President Gerald Ford, the Treasury Department agency said:

— In Boston, from last July to October, robberies by firearms dropped 40 per cent from the same 1975 period and all murders declined 45 per cent. However, assault by firearms increased 16 per cent.

— In Chicago, during October only, robberies by firearms dropped 30 per cent, assaults by firearms dropped 20 per cent and murders by firearms dropped 16 per cent.

— In Washington, D.C., from July to September, robberies by firearms dropped 30 per cent, murders by firearms dropped 32 per cent and assaults by firearms dropped 10 per cent.

In addition 109 firearms dealers in Washington, 171 in Chicago and 34 in Boston voluntarily surrendered their licenses.

CUE, an acronym for "Concentrated Urban Enforcement," was begun as a pilot project in Washington, Feb. 15, 1976, and in Boston and Chicago last July, the ATF said.

A news conference a more complete report will go to Congress next July. Davis said the interim report was based on more than 9,000 guns traced through last Nov. 31 from the three cities.

"We can state positively that crime guns and explosives, and the criminals who use them, are being taken off the streets at an accelerated rate since CUE began in Washington, Chicago and Boston," Davis said.

"Our purpose was to work shoulder to shoulder with local law enforcement agencies to take gun carrying criminals off the streets, to find where these criminals were getting their guns and then cut off the source," Davis said.

ATF Director Rex Davis told
